Required Information

The Health Foundation and NHS England and NHS Improvement are providing Test and Learn grant funding for NHS anchor institutions, who are participants of the HALN, to make progress on their anchors work, test approaches and generate new and valuable learning for both HALN participants and the wider health and care system.

The aims of the funding are to test and/or practice, through which we hope to:

- Support NHS anchor institutions to deliver projects that enables them to help make progress on their broader anchor ambitions and that will contribute to tackling health inequalities.
- Create new and valuable anchor learning for HALN participants, and others working on anchor activities across health and care, to use and apply in their own contexts.

There are four grants of up to £25,000 available for activities within England, Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The grants will be selected by December 2021 for six to nine-month projects.

The first stage of the process is to submit a short expression of interest by 27th September at 16:00.

Please refer to the grant funding guidance on the Health Foundation website, and when completing the expression of interest form, please note the further information outlined in section 6.

Eligibility Criteria

Below are the criteria to apply for this programme. Tick all the boxes in order to apply. Funding is open to applicants across England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

To be eligible for funding, projects must:

1. Name an NHS anchor institution as the lead applicant (i.e. NHS trusts (England), Health Boards (Wales), NHS Boards (Scotland) and Health and Social Care Trusts (Northern Ireland)). Organisations are welcome to apply in partnership with local partners, non-health anchor institutions, health systems, local authorities, charities, social enterprises, regional bodies and networks.
2. Start from early 2022 (January - March), taking place over a six to nine-month period.
3. Name a member of the project delivery team who is a HALN participant (have signed up to the newsletter via the HALN website). This should ideally be the project lead. There is no maximum time requirement for being a participant prior to applying for funding.
4. Focus on anchor activities in NHS organisations measuring the economic, social and/or environmental impact for their local populations.

Applicants will be expected to contribute to any related programme evaluation commissioned by the Health Foundation or NHS England and NHS Improvement.

Completing the expression of interest form

Please refer to the guidance when responding to these questions, particularly ensuring you are answering the additional information outlined in section 8. You can access this guidance on the Health Foundation website or via the 'Supporting Documents' on the top right of the page.

The maximum word count is 500 words – we encourage applicants to keep to the word limit suggested for each question in the expression of interest guidance.

If you want to save the form for later, please tick the 'save and resume later' box at the bottom of the page. Then click 'save / submit'.

To resume your application, please navigate to 'Home' at the top of the page, where you should see your saved expression of interest form. Click 'resume application' to pick up from where you left off.

Submitting your application

You will not be able to submit your application until you have completed all of the questions.

Before submitting your application, please complete read and confirm that you have read and understood the privacy notice by checking the box on the next page.

Please also check the box to confirm that you have authorisation to submit the application on your organisation's behalf.

When you submit your application, you will receive an email to confirm your expression of interest has been received.
